What is Project Blueprint?

Modeled after a national program, Project Blueprint is a local initiative that helps United Way and other nonprofit agencies recruit African-American, Latino and Asian volunteers to serve on community boards and committees. Through Project Blueprint, United Way seeks to strengthen our nonprofit system into one that is more inclusive and responsive to our culturally diverse community.

Project Blueprint

- Recruits and trains culturally diverse prospective volunteer leaders who have aspirations of serving the community.
- Evaluates, assesses, and monitors the placement of program participants on nonprofit agency boards.
- Communicates the importance of volunteer diversity in nonprofits to area corporations, local nonprofit agencies, community leaders, residents and media.

There is no cost to participants for becoming involved in Project Blueprint - only time and commitment to the program. The return to the community is tremendous.

Through involvement in Project Blueprint, participants can enhance health and human service agencies' knowledge of, sensitivity to, and support for the needs of minorities in the community. This outreach effort to all sectors of the community will result in a better quality of life for all.

Why Project Blueprint?

Project Blueprint participants are given the opportunity to:

- Sharpen leadership and management skills.
- Increase networking opportunities.
- Acquire a sense of fulfillment and satisfaction by contributing to the well-being of the community.
- Become a respected decision maker with a place at the table.
- Serve the community and use diverse leadership skills and perspectives.
